Breakthrough In-motion Antenna and Live Satellite TV in Cars to be Offered through Tweeter & Affiliated Stores Nationwide

MIDDLETOWN, R.I.--(BUSINESS WIRE)--June 26, 2003-- Paving the way for the nationwide introduction of live satellite TV in cars, KVH Industries (Nasdaq: KVHI) announced today that Tweeter Home Entertainment Group has signed on as the first nationwide retailer for the new TracVision A5 satellite TV antenna. Tweeter will sell, install, and support the TracVision A5 through a retailer network comprised of 147 stores under the Tweeter, HiFi Buys and Sound Advice names in the New England, Texas, Southern California, Mid-Atlantic, Chicago, Southeast and Florida markets.

"Tweeter's agreement to sell and support the TracVision A5 establishes an instant, recognizable national retail presence for the TracVision A5," said Martin Kits van Heyningen, KVH's president and chief executive officer. "It is a pleasure to be working with one of the nation's premier specialty consumer electronics retailers to bring TracVision A5 and live satellite TV to mini-vans, SUVs, and passenger vehicles throughout the United States. We are looking forward to working with Tweeter to introduce this exciting new product to their customers."

TracVision A5 is a revolutionary low-profile satellite TV antenna designed specifically for passenger vehicles. It provides in-motion access to more than 300 channels of satellite TV and commercial-free music via virtually all in-vehicle passenger entertainment systems. The 5-inch high TracVision A5 uses KVH's revolutionary phased-array technology to create an antenna with a rugged, flat design suitable for the family SUV, mini-van, or car.

"Mobile video products have been the fastest growing segment of the mobile electronics business for the last three years," said Dan Jeancola, Tweeter's vice president of mobile electronics. "The TracVision A5 offers an entirely new level of versatility to these screens by providing vehicle passengers with premium satellite TV programming for their video systems. This is the type of quality, groundbreaking technology that Tweeter customers have come to expect from us. We're pleased to be working with KVH to offer it nationwide."

TracVision A5 will be available in all Tweeter Car Stereo Center locations, which offer a range of products from such leading manufacturers as Alpine, Audiovox, Eclipse, JL Audio, Kenwood, Kicker and Pioneer. All Tweeter locations with mobile electronics departments are staffed by certified Mobile Electronic Technicians and feature fully equipped installation bays and woodworking facilities.
